The Workplace Award

A highly competitive sector, workplace design has had to keep pace with changes in the technology, evolving work habits, ever more stringent regulations and expectations around health and safety in the workplace. It also has to consider changing priorities and expectations around embodied and operational carbon as well as an increased emphasis on health and wellbeing.

“It’s a great award as the ‘test of time’ is incredibly important for all serious architecture”

*Rab Benentts
Bennetts Associates*

The judges will be looking for agile and inventive projects that have considered, or successfully adapted to, these wide-ranging challenges while lifting the spirits and enriching the public realm. Read the judges’ verdicts on previous winners, which range from a tiny, bespoke, architect’s studio to a vast corporate HQ.

About the awards

We launched our awards as a direct riposte to the prevalent awards culture. Instead of focussing on what's new, what's fresh, what's perfect, what's pristine, we look at what has endured, what's flexible, what's adaptable, what works, what performs. Submitting an entry isn't about salesmanship or showmanship. It's about engaging with this discussion; revisiting projects with the benefit of hindsight and reflecting on lessons learnt.

The aim is not to hold an annual beauty parade, but to establish a canon; an archive of projects that represent best practice and have demonstrated their worth. And to demonstrate the long-term value of projects that stand the test of time. Crucially, these awards exist to make the long-term value of architecture visible: to show that flexibility, longevity, and performance are not secondary virtues, but the most meaningful measure of success.

Previous winners

WWF-UK Living Planet Centre, Woking, by Hopkins Architects

“This purpose-built HQ was designed to be environmentally-exemplary, publicly-engaging, cost-effective, adaptable – and to nurture its staff for generations to come. Twelve years on, it’s delivered on all of those goals. Just as importantly, the data on user satisfaction and well-being shows that it’s a healthy and enjoyable place to work.”

Knox Bhavan Studio, Peckham, London, Knox Bhavan

“A diminutive project that punches well above its weight, Knox Bhavan’s studio reflects the practice’s focus on health, wellbeing and regenerative design. Simultaneously contemplative and inspiring, it shows how a carefully-designed workplace can stimulate creativity, excite the senses and soothe the soul.”

Talkback, Soho, London, by Henley Halebrown and Manalo & White

“This is a project that has adapted, chameleon-like, to changes in use; most recently from production studios to boutique hotel. More astonishing still, each of these incarnations appears to have been carried off with effortless aplomb.”

Wessex Water Operations Centre, Bath, by Bennetts Associates

“Completed more than 20 years ago, Bennetts Associates’ pioneering project attained targets standards comparable to low carbon targets being set today. The fact that Wessex Water’s chairman says that he ‘wouldn’t change a thing’ shows that this is truly a building that has stood the test of time.”

Why enter?

- Demonstrate your ability to produce work that delivers long-term value over time.
- Showcase your expertise in this sector to a wide audience of judges, collaborators and clients
- Reconnect with clients and collaborators and reflect on lessons learned
- High-profile media exposure with all shortlisted projects announced on Architecture Today's website and social media channels
- All winning projects covered extensively on Architecture Today's website and in a special awards issue of *Architecture Today
- All winning projects are rephotographed by leading architectural photographer Timothy Soar
- Teams behind the winning projects record a presentation on their scheme, which is widely promoted through AT's media channels and forms part of an archive of best-in-field projects that have stood the test of time

“For me, the greatest reward an architect can receive is history itself — and these awards capture exactly that. They celebrate the enduring relationships we build with our clients long after a project is complete”

*Dav Bansal,
Howells*

Process

All entries are thoroughly reviewed by our Awards Panel, who typically select three finalists in each category. The teams behind the shortlisted projects are invited to present their project to our expert jury at the Live Finals, a day of live crits which will take place on 16th July at The Society Building in central London.

We work with the successful entrants to record their presentations for the AT archive of outstanding buildings that have stood the test of time, a free-to-access resource for academia, practice and clients.

The winning project in each category is rephotographed by Timothy Soar and published on AT's website and in a special awards issue of *Architecture Today.

“These awards have real integrity”

Winners' Party

The winners will be announced at an awards party on Thursday 12th November at 76 Southbank, a Grade II listed building designed for IBM by Sir Denys Lasdun and completed in 1983, and recently refurbished and extended by Allford Hall Monaghan Morris for Wolfe Commercial Properties.

“This is a critically important award, particularly in the era we live in, where responsibility is increasingly central to architectural practice. This is not about designing something wonderful and then disappearing; it’s about standing by your decisions and a powerful way of reflecting on those responsibilities, and reminding ourselves what they really mean”

*Peter Bishop,
The Bartlett School of Architecture, UCL*

Entry criteria

The Test of Time Awards are designed to showcase, celebrate and share knowledge about buildings that have stood the test of time.

Projects will only be considered if they have been in use for at least three years and can demonstrate a strong track record for delivering on their environmental, functional, community and cultural ambitions.

Each category is open to new-build and retrofit projects. Projects can be of any scale or typology and in any part of the world, but must have been completed before April 1st 2023 to be eligible for entry.

You do not have to be a registered architect to submit a project. We actively encourage submissions from consultants, clients, charities, residents and community groups.

Group submissions are particularly welcome. Some of the strongest submissions and presentations have been made by a designer in tandem with a collaborator or client.

“I want to congratulate Architecture Today for doing what many of us have dreamed of happening for a long time. To reward buildings, not out of fashion the day they’ve finished, not because of the way they look, but how they actually work out in practice, and how they stand the test of time”
